

| off-topic · #off-topic is for things that has nothing to do with YGG or the crypto space , for example if you wanna talk ...

4. blockain intergration was good to some extent but too much signing was a problem in my part

NEW

Respondent 3

1. My first experience with P2E games was exciting because earning while playing felt new and a little too encouraging, which made me focus more on the rewards than the gameplay.
2. When the market collapsed, my interest dropped since the rewards lost value and the community became less active.
3. Profit overshadows fun in these games because the gameplay is weak and lacks progression and replayability.
4. The blockchain features added more hassle than benefit, with wallets, fees, and slow transactions making the experience feel complicated.

 Good day! We are undergraduate students researching for our thesis, which focuses on designing a sustainable M...

Respondent 4

1. Initially I found it fun, but eventually P2E games felt more like a chore, and what motivated me is the income.
2. It did not affect me since I was already out of the market when the crash happened.
3. People do not care about core gameplay but on how fast it is to make money.
4. It was cumbersome since usually there were fees for everything.