Good day!

We are undergraduate students researching for our thesis, which focuses on designing a sustainable MMORPG with a dual-economy tokenomics model.

To ground our design in real community experiences, we would be grateful if you could share your insights by answering a few brief questions.

1. What was your initial experience with P2E games like, and what motivated you to join?
2. How did the market collapse personally affect you and your engagement with the game and its community?
3. Why do you think profit overshadows fun in these games, and what core elements are missing that would make gameplay intrinsically enjoyable?
4. Did the blockchain integration feel like a seamless enhancement or a source of friction in your experience?

Your feedback is crucial for our research. Thank you for your valuable time and contribution!
